

Did you know...

- A 1948 Chevy coupe had 138 feet of wire weighing 9.5 pounds while a 2003 Chevy Suburban has 5,042 feet of wire weighing 53 pounds.
- A typical passenger car in 1998 had approximately 70 switches, sensors and actuators while a typical vehicle in 2005 has over 160.
- The Engine Control Module in a 1995 vehicle processed approximately 8,000 instructions per second while a 2005 ECM processes over 5 million instructions per second.
- The electrical equipment content of a vehicle will go from 20% of the vehicle cost today to over 40% by the end of the decade.